The City of Portland-Multnomah County Food Policy Council (FPC) is a citizen advisory panel reporting directly to Portland City Council and the Multnomah County Board of Commissioners. Established in 2002, the FPC brings citizens and professionals together from the region to address key food system issues including food access, land use planning, local food purchasing plans, as well as many other policy initiatives in current to the regional food system. The FPC presents to the Multnomah County Board of Commissioners in December the efforts and recommendations of the FPC in the past year. Applications for each of the recommended appointees have been attached for the Board Documents Packet.

3. Explain the fiscal impact (current year and ongoing).

No impact

4. Explain any legal and/or policy issues involved.

The FPC offers recommendations from an array of stakeholders to integrate the aspects of the food system (production, distribution, access, consumption, processing and recycling) in order to enhance the environmental, economic, social and nutritional health of the City of Portland and Multnomah County.

5. Explain any citizen and/or other government participation that has or will take place.

The Health Department and Office of Sustainability staff convened an FPC committee in order to seek FPC recommendations on 2012-2014 FPC appointees. The FPC committee developed criteria for reviewing applicants and then worked through a consensus process to determine their recommendations. Those recommendations were offered to the Multnomah County Chair's Office for its review.
